Personal Literacy Plan: Using Assessment Data to Guide Instruction

Ready to Learn Providence, Rhode Island

Topic: Preschool Language and Literacy

Practice: Teach Phonological Awareness

The Personal Literacy Plan (PLP) provides a framework for organizing assessment data to identify individual literacy strengths and needs and plan differentiated language instruction. Phonological awareness skills are addressed in Sections II C, letter sounds; Section III, beginning sound awareness; and Sections V and VI, rhyming and nursery rhyme awareness.

Teachers, coaches, and mentors use PLPs to record literacy activities and children's learning, including supporting documentation (e.g., portfolios with children's work samples, assessments, audio recordings, and photo archives). They try to capture anecdotes and observations that represent growth, write summaries of what was learned, and share this information with colleagues to support self-reflection during monthly professional development meetings.

The PLP examples found here illustrate the range of documentation used by Ready to Learn teachers to track children's learning and individualize instruction. Take a close look at the examples of classroom activity photographs, student work samples, and the language sample of a conversation between two children included here.

This document is an individually referenced assessment tool.

- A snapshot of children's literacy skills based on PALS-Pre-K and PPVT-III data
- A means to organize and to move each child forward in his/her literacy learning
- An individually-referenced assessment tool to collect authentic, ongoing classroom documentation.

Home School Connection

- Teachers have a holding place to note when contact was made with a child's family.
- Teachers can document what was requested from parents: book selection, library visits, home literacy activities that support classroom learning.

Name Writing

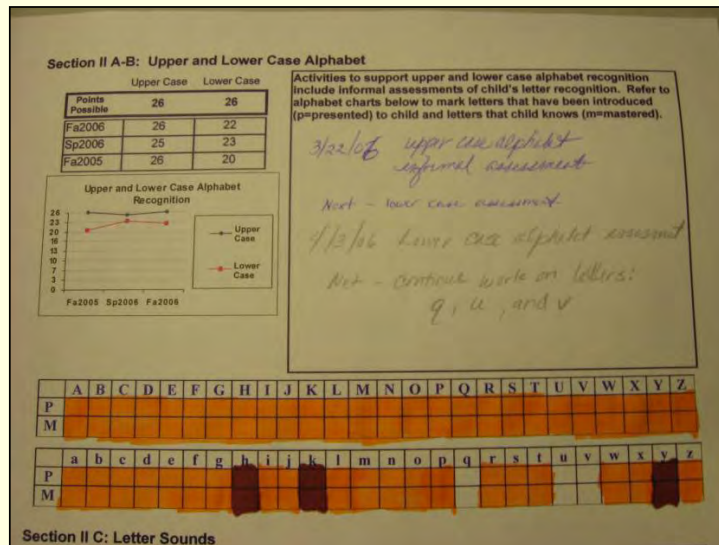

- Teachers can collect on-going, informal assessments of children's name writing.
- Potential opportunities:
 - Daily sign in sheets
 - Name writing activities
 - Name samples on children's work

Name Writing

Upper and Lower Case Alphabet

- Noted date informal assessment performed
- Shaded in those letters child could identify
- Suggested next steps: continued activities focusing on: q, u, and v.

Alphabet assessment: upper case letters

- (J) was very engaged during this activity. He was asked to retrieve a letter from the basket. A sticker was placed on each letter he identified. He knew all but 3 letters.

Rhyming and Nursery Rhyme Awareness

Activity box reads:

Date and identify small group activities focusing on rhyming words.

Note child's success/ need to continue to practice. List nursery rhymes presented to child.

- Information from PLPs guided monthly professional development sessions: book selection promoting phonological awareness skills; rhyming cards; Scholastic's Building Language for Literacy (BLL) assessment forms
- Since book reading occurs at different times of the day (whole group, small group, etc), this teacher chose to "✓", rather than date her activities for this child.

home experiences

List new vocabulary from BLL and other curriculum:

Aquarium - fish, seal, penguin, starfish, shark, turtle, goggles, diver

Farm - tractor, pig, silo, barn, corn, cow, chicken, wheelbarrow

Personal Literacy Plans

The PLP was designed as a tool to “translate” formal data into a teacher and family-friendly document that assists in targeting relevant literacy activities to children. Thus, the PLP serves as the catalyst for recognizing where each child is on the early literacy continuum and individualizing instruction for their emergent literacy development.
